Stephen,

Here are some pictures from the San Jacinto inspection on 7/1/2015. The visible cap and all fences were intact, and the signs were visible. There was no evidence of recent trespass. During the inspection the PRPs covered the small areas of visible geotextile in the rock stockpile & overlap areas with rock material. This visible geotextile was not the geotextile underlying the armor rock. After the visual site inspection, the PRPs performed the topographic and bathymetric surveys, as well as vegetation control treatments. The inspection report, including the survey results, is expected from PRPs in August 2015.

I've also attached a fact sheet for San Jacinto.

Regards,
